YOUR EVERYDAY LANGUAGE DICTIONARY!

Keep track of your dictionary searches and organize them in prjets so you can finally learn those words you look up the most!

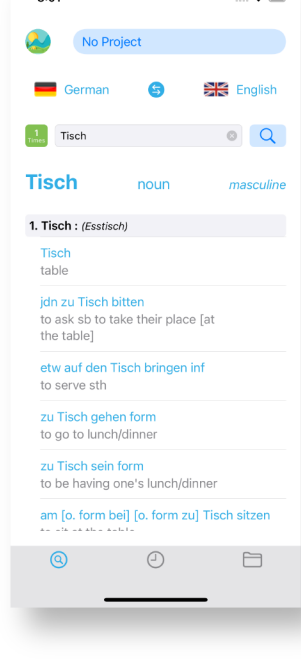

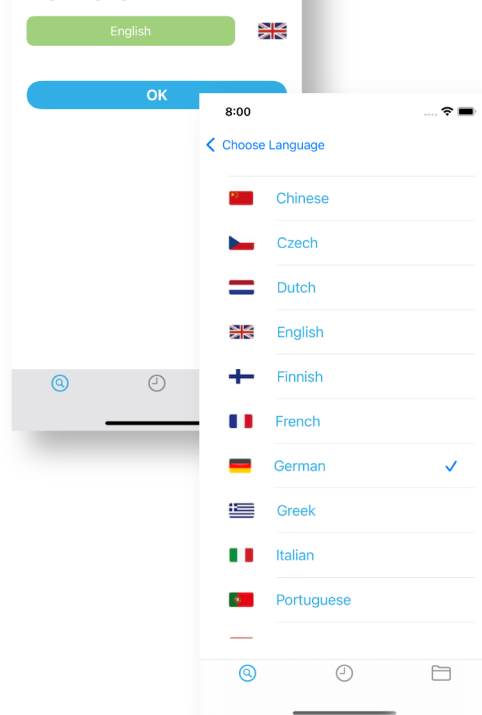

Start by selecting the languages you want to use in your translation.

Choose your source language for the word you want to look up. Target language will be the one the word will be translated to.

We have multiple languages to choose from!

Once they are selected, you can click the two-way arrow on the search screen to exchange them

Now you can look up your word. A little box will appear keeping track of all the times you have searched each word.

History

In the history tab, a list of your recent searches will appear. So you can keep track of your learning.

You can clear all the words you have looked up, so you can start afresh.

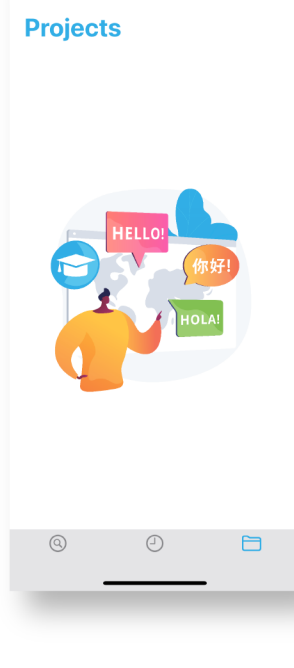

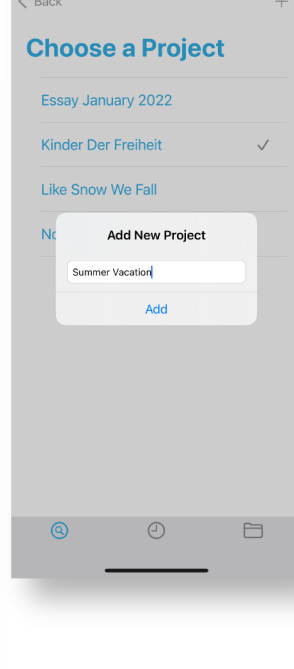

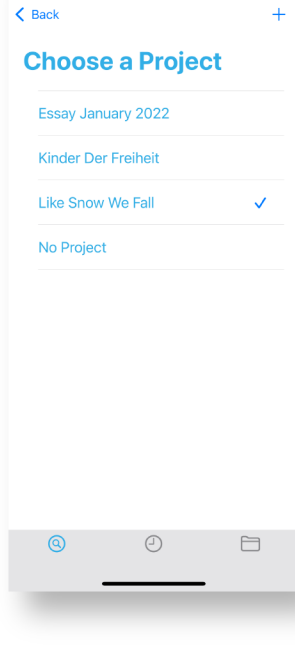

Also, you can check in which projects you have looked up a particular word. Sometimes we just keep forgetting that meaning again and again...

If you wish to, this word can be deleted from all the projects if you click the trash button.

Projects

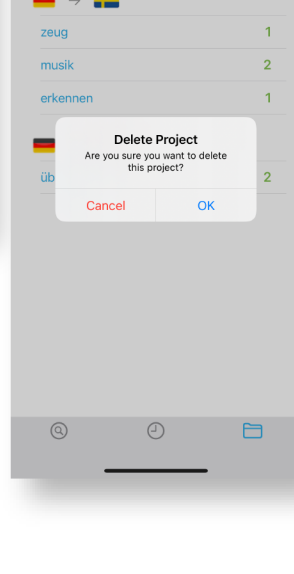

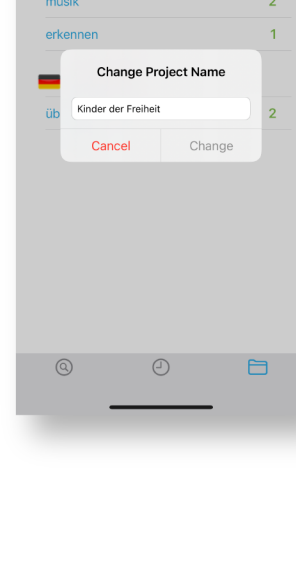

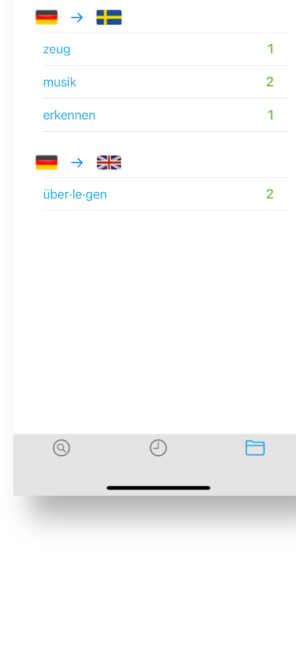

You can also select the project in which to save words you look up. It can be anything, from the new book you are reading, an essay from school or even no project at all.

In the Projects tab, you will find the projects you have previously saved.

When trying to find which words you have specifically looked up for a particular project, click on it and keep track of your language journey.

Change your project name if you need to and delete it if you have already learned those words!
